What was shared and main outcomes

During the seminar activity “Exploring Practices and Experiences”, Mundus presented the IN.PACT project to the participating organisations, introducing its main objectives, activities and results.

The presentation included the interactive map available on the project website, as well as the Participatory Community Facilitator course and its online platform. Mundus also presented the Smart Participatory Lab (SPL), using the communication materials developed and shared through the project’s social media channels.

Main outcomes: the activity served both as a dissemination opportunity and as a way to generate interest in the project’s final results. Participants were introduced to the upcoming SPL Guidelines, and the organisations present were encouraged to engage with this final result and to take part in the project’s final activities and closing event.

Main outcomes: the activity introduced the upcoming SPL Guidelines and opened a discussion on using IN.PACT's outcomes to develop new European cooperation projects, with the next Erasmus+ deadline (February 2027) identified as a concrete next step for the participating organisations.

NatureSense Nature Immersion Retreat

Practice-sharing session and IN.PACT presentation (Day 1 of the retreat, 25–27 September 2026)

PARTNER
Inesto

DATE
25 September 2026

PARTICIPANTS
14

VENUE
Rifugio Forte di Machaby, Arnad (Aosta Valley)

TARGET AUDIENCE
Youth workers, trainers and non-formal educators acting as mentors, and adult learners (mentees) of the NatureSense programme

What was shared and main outcomes

On the first day of the NatureSense Nature Immersion Retreat (Erasmus+ KA210-ADU), Inesto dedicated a session to sharing practices among the youth workers, trainers and other participants, and used it to present the IN.PACT results to an audience beyond the youth sector. Participants exchanged participatory, somatic and nature-based practices from their own work.

Inesto presented the Smart Participatory Lab as a replicable format, drawing on the first Lab held at Grain&Sens (Ardèche, June 2026) and its five-phase learning spiral; the online SPL Toolkit, shown as a practical tool to organise events of many kinds, from multi-day labs and retreats to local workshops; the interactive map of participatory practices; and the Participatory Community Facilitator online course.

Main outcomes: a direct bridge between two Erasmus+ partnerships. The retreat itself served as a live example of a participatory, nature-based gathering, showing participants how the SPL Toolkit can support them in designing similar events in their own contexts, and extending the reach of IN.PACT into the adult education field.

IN.PACT multiplier event in an urban wetland of Brussels

PARTICIPANTS

Marais de Biestebroeck, Anderlecht (Brussels)

TARGET AUDIENCE
Youth workers, young people and representatives of local organisations

What was shared and main outcomes

Gaia Education held the Belgian IN.PACT multiplier event at the Marais de Biestebroeck, an urban wetland in Anderlecht (Brussels), with 32 youth workers, young people and representatives of local organisations. Ivan Ballesteros Barnie, IN.PACT project coordinator, presented the project and its main results: the interactive map of participatory practices, the free online Participatory Community Facilitator course and the Smart Participatory Lab.

Participants watched the film of the Lavenant Lab (France, June 2026) and were introduced to the SPL Guidelines and the online SPL Toolkit as resources to organise similar labs locally. The group then took part in participatory activities to share their reactions to IN.PACT and explore what emerged for their own work and communities.

Main outcomes: participants discovered some of the tools identified in the mapping as innovative participatory practices with marginalised groups, and experienced some of the project's good practices first-hand, leaving with concrete methods and open resources for their work with young people.
